

Received 16 July 2014

From: Christine Hauser

I believe there is absolutely no reason to save water in South Australia with the present price structure. I live in a 2 person household, use hardly any water but my water price is based on the value of my house. This is absolutely stupid and encourages me to use as much water as I like. There is no incentive for me to save water as my cost is the same whatever I use. Water pricing should be based strictly on the amount of water used. This current pricing structure is senseless.

Thank you

Christine Hauser